

Red Cross Offers Babysitting Class

Boys and girls 11 years of age and older can learn what's expected of them as baby-sitters when the Los Angeles Red Cross Chapter launches free Mother's Aide classes throughout the city this fall.

Residents of this area may attend five 90-minute sessions at the Chapter's Southern District Service Center, 1499 W. First St., San Pedro, Mondays and Thursdays, starting tomorrow, from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

The course includes hints for entertaining young children, precautionary health and safety measures, simple first aid techniques, and pointers on babysitting techniques. Students will also practice skills which may be asked of them when caring for an infant six months or older.

COOPERATING on the pilot course with the Red Cross volunteer instructor, Mrs. Stanton Jay Reichel of San Pedro, will be representatives of the local police, fire and recreation departments. While Red Cross has for years trained adult instructors to teach baby-sitting techniques to youth groups, this is the first course the organization has offered directly to prospective Mothers' Aides.

To register for the free class, prospective students may call the Red Cross.

Students Try Wings At West

West High School teachers, Mrs. Martha Gatsinaris, Robert Pickard, William Bowden and Robert Schultz, have been selected to work with Long Beach State student teachers during the fall semester of 1967.

Mrs. Jean Terry and Norman Smyers will spend a minimum of three periods a day at West High School. They will teach one period in their major field, one in their minor and will observe other classes on campus. They have completed all course requirements except student teaching and are currently enrolled in a student teaching course at Long Beach State College.

Members of the West High School faculty and staff are cooperating with the college administrators in planning a program for these student teachers which will lead to their full accreditation.

Tustin Senator Urges Repeal of Rumford Act

SACRAMENTO—Additional moves to repeal the Rumford Act were urged today by Senator John G. Schmitz (R-Tustin), who said work should begin soon to put an initiative measure on the ballot not only to repeal the act, but also to amend the Unruh Civil Rights Act so that it would no longer apply to residential property.

Senator Schmitz was the original author of a bill in the 1967 legislature asking repeal of the act. The measure was taken over by Senator Hugh M. Burns (D-Fresno) and passed the state senate. However, the assembly refused passage as well as compromise, so the act remains on the books.

"Failure of the legislature to take any action," he stated, "makes the initiative a necessity."

"If we are to preserve the principle of voluntary contracts and respect the will of two-thirds of the people of California as manifested by the vote for Proposition 14 in 1964, the Rumford Act must be repealed before another year has passed.

The court decision striking down Proposition 14 does not prevent us from repealing or amending any specific law by action of the legislature, or of the people." Schmitz said John O'Neill, president of the California Apartment Owners Association, has announced his support of a repeal "by whatever legal processes may be necessary."
